I retired from a major telecoms company 3 years ago after achieving 41 years of service. I began my career as an engineer working up telegraph poles and underground chambers installing and joining up cables.

After being knocked over by a car and being unable to carry on external duties. I decided to move over to the planning department.

For the last 15 years of my working career, I joined the Road works planning department. This involved planning the relocation of utility apparatus due to major highway works. I planned relocation of Cables, Cabinets and Telegraph Poles in the way of proposed highway alterations. My job was to assess every planning application affecting the public highway. Be it Housing Development Access Roads, Bridges & Dual Carriageways. If the scheme became funded, I would project manage the works to completion.
